ENCOURAGE KNITTING

Comforts Sets Are Welcome Smith Committee Finds

In spite unfavorable reports which have been received regarding the knitting of woolen suits and other comfort articles for soldiers the committee in charge of War Department The Pennsylvania Committee of Public Safety is enabled to make this cheering announcement to local authorities and mothers wives sweethearts and friends of men in the service

No attention should be paid to rumors to the effect that knitted goods are not acceptable and that the army men are not permitted to receive them There is only one caution issued to the patriotic women who are producing this warm apparel Don use plain colored yarns All such articles should be knitted in neutral color otherwise the soldiers will not be allowed to use them The reason for this ruling is plain Bright colors render soldiers conspicuous and expose them unnecessarily to the enemy s fire

It is much preferred by the War Department that knitted goods be given to the Red Cross or distributing organization that organization knows exactly where it is most needed by them The department however does not favor anyone the right to donate such goods to individuals or to regimental units

WOMEN BATTLE

Girl Who Danced With Man Has Real Fight With Partner's Wife.

When a married man started dancing with a girl who was not his wife at a dance in Markell hall last night, and his wife "got hep" to the fact, one of the most classic fights ever seen in Connellsville was precipitated. The single girl was quite polite about the thing, suggesting to the married woman that they go downstairs and settle the matter. This was agreeable to the other woman, but when the two nearly reached the door to the hall, the woman declared that she favored settling it "right here." The girl consented and the two started in. The girl came out of the fray without a scratch, but her opponent was "all cut up," and sustained a smashed hat and a torn dress in addition.

There were no arrests made but the two women and the man who had caused all the trouble were ejected from the hall.

PREMUS HERE

Draftee Called For Examination in August Back From South America.

William Premus, of this city, who was arrested in the East during the summer, charged with being a slacker, appeared at the office of the local exemption board for District No. 5 this morning. He had not registered and after he did so was released.

Premus is a seaman, and he took the job of third engineer on a boat making a trip to South America. When called for examination he was out of the country, but was handed the summons immediately on his arrival in New York. Premus carried letters of recommendation from his employers. He said he wanted to claim exemption, but it is not likely that he will be allowed to do so, as he has not complied with the draft laws. He was told to return to the offices this afternoon when C. B. Franks, chairman of the board, will be present.

NEWSY NOTES TELL WHAT'S HAPPENING IN THE MILL TOWN

Councilman Percy Says There is Too Much Street Fighting Late at Night.

COMMITTEE TO TAKE ACTION

Patrolmen Will Be Instructed as to Covering the Town and Told What is Expected of Them; W. C. T. U. Planning a Rummage Sale; Notes.

Special to The Courier.

SCOTTDALE, Nov. 7.—Council met Monday evening when $2,074.26 in bills was paid. Collector S. B. McMillan reported the following tax collections: From 1915, $25.93; 1916, $135.74; 1917, $1,857.59; total, $2,019.26. Secretary F. M. Newcomer reported the following receipts: Burgess W. N. Porter, $46.50; weighmaster, J. S. Kuhn, $59.80; Broadway National bank, interest, $114.80; Mrs. Sadie Strickler, $257.77; J. I. Dick, permits, $27.50; Fayette County Gas company, $9.37; J. F. Hardy, use of truck, $1.25.

R. P. Percy of the police committee said that something should be done to curb the fighting in town from 11 to 2 o'clock at night. He said there had been two cases of near murder within a stone's throw of the borough building. "One man was badly beaten up, another needed 14 stiches and it is said will probably lose an eye. One young man was found beastly drunk on Sunday afternoon and it was stated that he got his booze at one of the clubs," Mr. Percy said.

Mr. Percy thought the police could have paid a little more attention to their duties. No arrests were made in either of the cases as the police officers did not see the trouble, and no informations were made. A resolution was passed that the police committee be authorized to give instructions to the police in regard to patroling the town, and attending to their duties. The question of putting a phone in the house of the chief of police was left in the hands of the committee with power to act.

Complaint was made concerning the condition of the property around the P. R. R. where coal dust and litter blows in the eyes of passersby on Broadway. It was decided to make complaint to R. T. Morrow and to inquire why the repairs had not been completed at the Bridge street crossing.

The ordinance committee reported that the revised ordinances were about ready for publication. One new ordinance regarding permits will have to be passed. Council adjourned to meet Monday, November 12.

W. C. T. U. Meets.

The W. C. T. U. held a meeting last evening at the home of Mrs. M. L. Brown. Mrs. H. C. Fox on the committee for the making of comfort bags reported 12 having been completed and turned into the Red Cross. The annual contribution to the county home and for jail work was sent on to these places. The society received four new members, Mrs. George Hugus, Mrs. Abe Truxal, Mrs. I. E. McGee and Mrs. Robert Baird. Arrangements were completed for the Rummage sale to be held in the Taylor store room on Broadway, November 22 and 24. The money raised from this sale will be for soldiers and sailors and the money to be derived from the sale is to be known as the Army and Navy Fund. It will be in charge of Mrs. C. D. Reid and Mrs. George McGoogan, assisted by the other ladies from the society. The ladies who go to the Alverton institute will leave on the 1:25 car for Alverton.

Luther League Rally.

The Luther League will have a rally in the Lutheran church on Friday evening. Gomer C. Reese will be one of the speakers.

Big Meeting.

A large Monday night crowd greeted Rev. Sawyer at the United Brethren Evangelistic church. The subject for the evening was "What Is the Matter With the Church?" "The need of the church today," stated Rev. Sawyer, "is a baptism of the Holy Ghost—more power not of the power of membership, not the cultured church, to the wealth of a church, or to influence. He referred to the power such as there was when Paul was in prison."

Notes.

Mrs. George Bixler and daughter, Mrs. Albert McManis, are shopping in Pittsburg today.

CONSTIPATION IS A PENALTY OF AGE

Nothing is so essential to health in advancing age as freedom and normal activity of the bowels. It makes one feel younger and fresher, and forestalls colds, piles, fevers, and other dependent ills.

Cathartics and purgatives are violent and drastic in action and should be avoided. A mild, effective laxative, recommended by physicians and thousands who have used it, is far preferable. This is the combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin sold by druggists under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It costs only fifty cents a bottle; a trial bottle, free of charge, can be obtained by writing to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 455 Washington St, Monticello, Illinois.

OUR NEW MAYOR.

Mayor elect Duggan upon his election wholly free from the electioneering of the people of the city executive officers of Connellsville for the first time in our history the administrative head of the local municipal government has been chosen without opposition at the general election and it is not the new mayor will not fail to appreciate the

His selection under all circumstances implies a confidence in his ability as an executive a deep interest in and interest in the best interests of the city and faithful discharge of his purpose and intention to give us an administration that will be to the credit of all himself and the municipality in all places upon him an obligation which he cannot lightly assume and we believe he will in no wise be disposed to disregard

From his knowledge of the needs of our city along material lines the community will expect Connellsville to assume its proper place and function as a live thriving and progressive city. If the Mayor elect fails in achieving these things it will be due more to be lack of cooperation on the part of the citizens of the city than to lack of endeavor effort on his part. Whatever our differences of opinion politically or otherwise we should not lose sight of the fact that we are stockholders in the municipal corporation and must be responsible with our chosen executive for the conduct of its affairs. As good citizens we can do no less than our full duty in supporting the city administration to the full extent of our ability and hope measures with equal fairness and candor due to support from any other hand. More than this the Mayor elect does not ask less than he should not expect.

ARE APPRECIATED.

While the Navy League and Red Cross knitting and mask societies of the country supplies bandages and dressings will not except in occasional instances receive direct acknowledgment from the soldiers and sailors who derive comfort from the use of these articles letters from time to time come to hand which are warmly appreciative of their gratitude. The appreciation the love labor of the thousands of hours and sacrifices of women in giving freely of their time to these useful garments and articles is shown by a letter from a Pittsburgh woman to a member of the Navy League Knitting branch of the Navy League. William H. O'Connor of the Marine Corps says:

Please accept the enclosed for the Navy League. I am sure that if the people could see the joy and comfort their gifts bring to the boys in the service they would be still more encouraged to do more work.

It is impossible for me to express who were in the battle of Belleau Wood how much the articles knitted by the women and children of the land are appreciated. I have heard many times that the worst of soldiering is the monotony of the trenches but with the knowledge that the women of our home land are working for us it makes the hardships more pleasant.

Our battalion is in reserve for the present and will be relieved in a few days. Then we will go to a rest billet where we can get a bath and a change of clothing. Then we will be ready for the next call.

UNCLE SAM, WORLD BANKER.

One of the most marvelous developments of the war viewed from its aspects as a conflict of arms has been the financial growth of the United States not alone in the increase of our wealth as an individual and commercial nation but as a financial center for the whole world. This is most accurately measured by the excess of securities we have made to the belligerent nations of Europe.

To date we have loaned to the allied governments a total of $3,656,400,000. This enormous sum as it would have been considered at the outbreak of the war has been distributed as follows: To Great Britain $1,860,000,000; to France $825,000,000; to Italy $511,000,000; to Russia, $325,000,000; to Belgium $58,400,000 and to Serbia $3,000,000.

When the first loan of $500,000,000 to Great Britain and France two years ago was undertaken there was considerable hesitation and deliberation among the bankers of the United States as to the advisability of extending so large a credit. Now loans of equal or greater amounts are made as promptly as domestic transactions in very much smaller amounts would have been concluded before the war. The difference in attitude has been the result of our nation having demonstrated its tremendous financial power and the shifting of the world's financial centers from the capitals of Europe to America. It is because our nation is coming to its own as the leader in all the forces of civilization not for the selfish purposes of national aggrandizement but to perpetuate the principles of free government and human liberties among all peoples of the earth. The financial moves which purposed us of after the war have gained for us the confidence of the world outside of Germany and her allies. When the struggle is over they too will be glad to clasp our friendly hand and good will and if possible gain the good graces of the new world banker.

Last Word in Winter Millinery

Early in October, from the trimmers' tables in great fashion centers, come the final messages concerning winter millinery. After that those who create styles must begin to think of hats for southern tourists and hats for spring; for once the holidays are over, there is a demand for headwear to be worn under southern skies. The late September and early October offerings in hats for winter wear sum up the successes in materials and shapes and trimmings offered for the season.

Velvet-covered shapes and others in which velvet joins hands with beaver, metal brocade or satin, to make the body of the hat, are all equally good style. Metal laces and small, brilliant flowers in metal and satin, or in composition that suggests porcelain—and always fur; these are everywhere in the rich and dressy hats which fashion approves for winter. Ribbons, some of them with gold or silver corded edges, and metallic ribbons in narrow widths, add their indispensable part to the very beautiful millinery which we are privileged to choose just now.

A great variety of shapes promises one at least that is becoming to every face. They are nearly all of medium size or small. There are no extremes one way or the other. One of the smaller hats appears at the left of the group above. It has a narrow, drooping brim and a draped crown. Ribbon edged with chenille sewed in rows over the shape is extended into a long point that folds over and is sewed to the base of the crown at the right side. After so much elaboration in making, this hat must content itself with a simple sash of velvet ribbon about the crown.

A wide-brimmed hat at the center of the group combines two colors in the shape. The brim is of a dark velvet and the crown of light hatters' plush. The crown is not smoothly covered and is soft at the top—characteristic of the season's modes. A very large bow finishes the end of a velvet sash for trimming. The brim is extended at the left side and turned back to the crown.

A very full and carefully managed display of velvet covers a shape with a narrow brim, shown at the right of the picture. The brim lifts to a point at the front. So much is made of the velvet in this hat that it needs only a fancy pin to finish it.

Evening Dress Trimmings.

The opening up of the season for evening dresses is having a strong influence on the demand for beads and spangles says the Dry Goods Economist, particularly in the more delicate shades. Spangled bands in plain row effect in such shades as Chinese blue, opal, coral, wisteria and green are all in high regard, being used in conjunction with tassels and small sized ornaments to match.

GETS JOB AS A FARM FOREMAN AT AGE OF 77

Says He Can Do the Work of a Man of 40 Now.

What would be the average man's chances of holding a job as foreman of a large farm in his 77th year on the strength of being able to do the work of a man of forty?

Mighty slim chances, the big majority of humanity would say.

But not so with David Wogan, farm foreman on the East View Farms, near Altoona, Pa.

"Like the tens of thousands of others I thought I would have to leave the hard work to the younger generation when I reached the allotted three-score and ten," said Mr. Wogan. "However, the past few years I have been troubled considerably from stomach and kidney troubles, and I was beginning to think I would have to give way to the younger men. However, I left no stone unturned in my effort to regain my health, so when I heard about Tanlac I immediately obtained a bottle.

"Well, after taking this remarkable remedy, I feel like a youngster despite my 77 years. No longer do I suffer from indigestion after eating, and I sleep just fine. My constipation, which has troubled me for years, is a thing of the past, and I no longer have to worry from that source. Those stomach pains which used to catch me while at work no longer bother me. I can do a full day's work without feeling worn out and tired as formerly."

Tanlac, the famous Master Medicine, is now sold here by the Connellsville Drug company.

Tanlac can also be secured in Dunbar at D. C. Eason's Drug Store.—Adv.

USE LEGS TO DRIVE HORSES

Cavalrymen Must Keep Hands Free to Fight With—Each Man a Regular Armory.

A cavalrymen must learn to drive by the pressure of his legs so both his hands will be free to fight with, for a cavalryman is a regular armory all to himself. He carries a pistol, a rifle and a saber, and he must be able to use them freely without being thrown from his horse.

There's something very romantic about the cavalry, something very thrilling about the thunder of hundreds of horses' hoofs, something that makes one's heart leap with joy—or terror, or a mixture of both. For myself, if I were "the enemy," I believe I'd much rather face a machine gun than a cavalry charge, writes Mary Woodson Shippey in the Southern Woman's Magazine. But, somehow, the cavalry has not proven practicable in the present war, and as France and England can furnish about all that might be needed, most of our cavalry are to be made into artillery, because of the great need of artillery.

In fact, all the new cavalry regiments are to be trained as artillerymen, while the old ones are being trained as infantrymen, although they will all keep their designation as cavalrymen. This gives them a double dose of training—for they must be able to drill equally well afoot or on horseback—as well as a double lot to learn. But they all insist, to a man, that they're not infantrymen—or "doughboys" and "leather-necks," as they derisively call them—but "dismounted cavalry." And so be it, since they are so terribly proud of their branch of the service and so loyal to it.

There were fully as many, or more, of these "dismounted cavalrymen" up on the hills going through regular infantry drill as there were cavalrymen astride horses—hundreds of them, olive-drab units marching, marching everywhere among the wheeling, circling horses, making one dizzy just watching. And standing about on lone prominences were various officers, silent, alert, their horses like statues—if statues could switch angrily at flies—their keen eyes watching very critically this army of these United States grow, picking out the mistakes and flaws in under-officers and men.

It gave one a strange, comforted feeling—a strange impression of a determination to see to it that all these hundreds of boys were perfect in all the tricks of the trade, so they could take care of themselves. And how young the most of them seemed! Slim, smooth-cheeked boys, their faces just growing up to the square manli-

Good Resolution Didn't Last.

When Nathaniel Ripple was just a youngster he did very little work about the place. In fact he didn't do anything. But one day, when he was almost ten years of age, he decided to take some of the work off his mother's shoulders. When breakfast was over he ordered his mother to the front porch. He was going to wash the dishes for her. When they were finished he called her to look at them, and she was very much surprised. She could hardly believe that he had done all that work by himself. Then he told her that he was going to wash them for her every meal. Of course she was glad, and she told him he might run out and play. Him play? Not a bit of it. He took the broom and swept every floor in the house. Mrs. Ripple, who is a very truthful woman, said that he swept them just as good as she could have done it herself. He then informed her that he was going to sweep them for her every day. That was the last time Nathaniel ever washed the dishes or swept the floors.—Claude Callan in Kansas City Star.

CHAPTER V

The Sheik's Daughter

Two Swedes Carl Jeassen and Sven Malbihn after conducting several mysterious expeditions far to the south of the Sahara turned their attention to the more profitable business of ivory poaching

In a great district they were already known for their relentless cruelty and their greed for ivory The natives feared and hated them The European governments in whose possessions they worked had long sought them but working their way slowly out of the north they had learned many things in the no man's land south of the Sahara, which gave them immunity from capture through easy avenues of escape that were unknown to those who pursued them.

Their raids were sudden and swift They seized ivory and retreated into the trackless wastes of the north before the guardians of the territory they raped could be made aware of their presence. Relentlessly they slaughtered elephants themselves as well as stealing ivory from the natives Their following consisted of a hundred renegade Arabs and negro slaves, a fierce band of cutthroats

Remember them Carl Jeassen and Sven Malbihn yellow bearded Swedish giants for you shall meet them later

In the heart of the jungle hidden away upon the banks of a small unexplored tributary of a large river that empties into the Atlantic not so far from the equator lay a small heavily palisaded village Within many palm thatched beehive huts sheltered its black people On a wide half a dozen goatskin tents in the center of the clearing housed the score of Arabs who found better home while by trading and looting they collected the caravans which their ships of the desert bore north until once each year to the market they made

Pitching before one of the Arab tents was a little girl who with her pet bonbon and graceful carriage bespoke much older than the dozen years the first rains had budded and opened on many a spot of grass The doll which she clasped had been made for her by one of the blacks before

The limbs of the doll were rude wooden pegs and its head a rough ball of grass fastened to the body by a thong of raw hide Its features and clothing were drawn with a bit of charcoal and a piece of red cloth and its hair was of the finest black wool

The child was ugly and altogether forbidding but Meriem the most beautiful orchid which is not so strange in view of the fact that love is the only object which that world upon which he could bestow her confidence and her love.

Every one else with whom Meriem came in contact was almost without exception either indifferent to her or cruel There was the old black hag who looked after her for example, Mabunu toothless filthy and ill tempered

She lost no opportunity to cuff the little girl or even inflict minor tortures upon her And there was the sheik her father She feared him more than she did Mabunu He often scolded her for nothing quite habitually terminating his tirades by cruel beating her until her little body was black and blue

Little Meriem could scarce recall any other existence than that of the stern cruelty of the sheik and Mabunu Dimly in the back of her childish memory there lurked a blurred recollection of a gentle mother But Meriem was not sure but that even this was a dream picture induced by her own desire for the caresses she never received.

Suddenly there arose sounds of altercation beyond the village gates. Meriem listened. With the curiosity of childhood she would have liked to run down there and learn what it was that caused the men to talk so loudly Others of the villagers were already trooping in the direction of the noise

But Meriem did not dare The sheik would be there, doubtless and if he saw her it would be but another opportunity to abuse her so Meriem lay still and listened.

Presently she heard the crowd moving up the street toward the sheik's tent Cautiously she stuck her head around the edge of the tent She could not resist the temptation for the sameness of the village life was monotonous and she craved diversion

What she saw was two strangers—white men. They were alone but as they approached she learned from the talk of the natives that surrounded them that they possessed a considerable following that was camped without the village

They were coming to trade with the sheik.

The old Arab met them at the entrance to his tent His eyes narrowed wickedly when they had approached the newcomers They stopped before him exchanging greetings Then he came to trade for ivory they said

The sheik grunted He had no ivory

Meriem gasped She knew that in a nearby hut the great tusks were piled almost to the roof She poked her head farther forward to get a better view of the strangers How white their skins! How yellow their great beards

Suddenly one of their turned his eyes in her direction She tried to dodge back out of sight for she feared all men but he saw her Meriem saw the look of almost shocked surprise that crossed his face The sheik saw it too and guessed the cause of it.

I have no ivory he reported I do not wish to trade Go away Go now

He stepped from his tent and almost pushed the strangers about in the direction of the gates They demurred and then the sheik threatened It would have been suicide to have disobeyed so the two men turned and left the village making their way immediately to their own camp

The sheik returned to his tent but he did not enter it Instead he walked to the side where little Meriem was close to the goatskin wall very frightened The sheik stooped and clutched her by the arm Viciously he jerked her to her feet dragged her from the en trance of the tent and shook her with an Following her he seized her again beating her ruthlessly

"Stay within he growled Never let the strangers see your face Next time you show yourself to strangers I shall kill you!"

In the camp of the strangers one was speaking rapidly to the other

"There is no doubt of it Malbihn he was saying "not the slightest but why the old scoundrel hasn't claimed the reward long since is what puzzles me

"There are some things dearer to an Arab Jenssen than money,' returned the first speaker 'Revenge is one of them"

Anyhow it will not harm to try the power of gold' replied Jenssen

Malbihn shrugged

Not on the sheik he said We might try it on one of his people, but the sheik will not part with his revenge for gold To offer it to him would only confirm his suspicions that we must have awakened when we were talking to him before his tent. If we get away with our lives then we should be fortunate

CHAPTER VI.

In the Jungle

His first night in the jungle was one which the son of Tarzan had longest in his memory No savage carnivora menaced him There was never a sign of hideous barbarous or if there were the boy's troubled mind took no cognizance of them.

His conscience was harassed by the thought of his mother's suffering Self blame plunged him into the depths of misery

The killing of the American caused him little or no remorse The fellow had carried his fate Jack's regret on this score was due mainly to the effect which the death of Conlon had had upon his own plans

Now he could not return directly to his parents as he had planned Deep of the primitive borderland law of which he had read highly colored, imaginary tales had thrust him into the jungle—a fugitive He dared not return to the coast at this point, not that he was so greatly influenced through personal fear as from a desire to shield his father and mother from further sorrow and from the shame of having their honored name dragged through the sordid degradation of a murder trial

With returning day the boy's spirits rose With the rising sun came new hope within his breast. He would return to civilization by another way None would guess that he had been connected with the killing of the stranger in the little out of the way trading post upon a remote shore

Crouched close to the great ape in the north of a tree the boy had shivered through an almost sleepless night His light pajamas had been but little protection from the chill dampness of the jungle and only that side of him which was pressed against the warm body of his hairy companion approximated comfort And so he welcomed the rising sun with its promise of warmth as well as light—the blessed sun dispeller of physical and mental ills

He shook Akut into wakefulness

Come he said I am cold and hungry We will search for food out there in the sunlight, and he pointed to an open plain dotted with stunted trees and strewn with jagged rock

The boy slid to the ground as he spoke but the ape first looked carefully about sniffing the morning air Then satisfied that no danger lurked near he descended slowly to the ground beside the boy

Numa and Sabor his mate feast upon those who descend first and look afterward while those who look first and descend afterward live to feast themselves Thus the old ape imparted to the son of Tarzan the boy's first lesson in jungle lore.

Side by side they set off across the rough plain for the boy wished first to be warm The ape showed him the best places to dig for rodents and worms but the lad only tugged at the thought of devouring the repulsive things Some eggs they found and these he sucked raw as also he ate roots and tubers which Akut unearthed

That night the son of Tarzan was colder than he ever had been in all his life The pajama trousers were not very heavy but they were much better than nothing And the next day he roasted in the hot sun for again his way led much across wide and treeless plains

It was still in the boy's mind to travel to the south and circle back to the coast in search of another outpost of civilization He had said nothing of this plan to Akut for he knew that the old ape would look with displeasure upon any suggestion that savored of separation

For a month the two wandered on the boy learning rapidly the laws of the jungle his muscles adapting themselves to the new mode of life that had been thrust upon them. The thews of the sinews had been transmitted to the son—it needed only the hardening of use to develop them

One day as they were moving slowly along beside a river they came unexpectedly upon a native village Some children were playing beside the water

The boy's heart leaped within his breast at sight of them For more than a month he had seen no human being What if these were naked savages? What if their skins were black? Were they not creatures fashioned in the mold of their Maker as was he? They were his brothers and sisters He started toward them

With a low warning Akut laid a hand upon his arm to hold him back The boy shook himself free and with a shout of greeting ran forward toward the ebon players

The sound of his voice brought every head erect Wide eyes viewed him for an instant and then with screams of terror the children turned and fled toward the village At their heels ran their mothers and from the village gate in response to the alarm came a score of warriors hastily snatched spears and shields ready in their hands

At sight of the consternation he had wrought the boy halted The glad smile faded from his face as with wild shouts and menacing gestures the warriors ran toward him Akut was calling to him from behind to turn and flee, that the blacks would kill him

With a low snarl quite similar to that of a baffled beast he turned and ran into the jungle There was Akut awaiting him in a tree The ape urged him to hasten in flight for the wise old anthropoid knew that they two naked and unarmed, were no match for the sinewy black warriors who would doubtless make some sort of search for them through the jungle

But a new power moved the son of Tarzan. He had come with a boy's glad and open heart to offer his friendship to these people who were human beings like himself. He had been met with suspicion and spears They had not even listened to him Rage and hatred consumed him

They made a detour about the hostile village and resumed their journey toward the coast.

All the while Jack's training went on under the guidance of Akut. Yet though the boy loved the jungle he had not let his selfish desires outweigh the sense of duty that had brought him to a realization of the moral wrong which lay beneath the adventurous escapade that had brought him to Africa His love of father and mother was strong within him too strong to permit unalloyed happiness which was undoubtedly causing them days of sorrow

And so he held tight to his determination to find a port upon the coast where he might communicate with them and receive funds for his return to London There he felt sure that he could now persuade his parents to let him spend at least a portion of his time upon those African estates which from little careless remarks dropped at home he knew his father possessed

That would be something—better at least than a lifetime of the cramped and cloying restrictions of civilization

Get the Habit of Drinking Hot Water Before Breakfast

Says we can't look or feel right with the system full of poisons

Millions of folks bathe inside now instead of loading their system with drugs What an inside bath? You say Well it is guaranteed to perform miracles if one could believe these hot water enthusiasts

There are vast numbers of men and women who immediately upon arising in the morning drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of Bisurated Magnesia in it This is a very excellent home measure It is said to flush the toxic liver bile and the thirty feet of intestines of the previous days waste sour bile and indigestible material left over in the body which if not eliminated every day become food for the millions of bacteria which infest the bowels Be quick relief from sick headache biliousness attacks of indigestion sour stomach bad breath coated tongue sallow complexion pimples and blotches on the skin and many other troubles which start in the bowels Bisurated Magnesia is pure blood and all sorts of ailments

People who feel good one day and bad the next but who simply can not get well right are urged to obtain a quarter pound of Bisurated Magnesia at the drug store This will cost very little but is sufficient to make an inside bath and a thorough one at that on the subject of internal sanitation

Just as soap and hot water act on the skin cleansing sweetening and freshening so Bisurated Magnesia acts on the stomach liver kidneys and bowels It is vastly more important to bathe the inside than on the outside because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood while the bowel pores do —Adv

Doctor Said Operation or Death—But Medicine Cured.

THE PARAMOUNT.

"THE SPY."—A 10 reel William Fox masterpiece, featuring Dustin Farnum in the leading role, and directed by Richard Stanton, will be presented Friday and Saturday. "The Spy" is a revelation of George Bronson Howard's sensational expose of the Kaiser's agents in America. In presenting the production William Fox keenly appreciates the fact that thousands of Americans of German birth or descent are giving the United States their undivided loyalty. This play, of course, does not refer to them in any way. The United States government has appropriated millmillions of dollars in recent months to fight the remarkably efficient German spy system in America. At present there is not a bridge nor a tunnel of any size, a munition factory or public utility of any importance that is not guarded by federal troops, the police or private guards. All of these facts have prompted Mr. Fox to produce "The Spy," which exposes German plots in the United States, plots that for wanton wickedness are without parallel in the history of the world. It is not a secret that the Kaiser has upward of 10,000 trained agents in America, and they were in America before the war. The German spy is everywhere. Even in the rich man's club it has been shown that the waiters are in the employ of the Kaiser. Other screen stars of prominence who appear in the support of Mr. Farnum are Winifred Kingston, William Burress, Charles Clary and William B. Lowery.

THE PARAMOUNT.

"ANYTHING ONCE."—A sensational comedy with Franklyn Farnum in the Bluebird star, in the leading role and "His Wedding Night," a two reel comedy with Roscoe "Fatty" Arbuckle, the popular comedian, in the leading role, are today's attractions. "Anything Once," is a comedy drama of the most hilarous import, describing the thrills and sensations, the comical an Eastern "rounder" waged against his neighbor in the Far West, who would frighten him away from the ranch that the wealthy uncle had willed him upon condition that he live there six months before coming into full possession of his valuable heritage. The young man to fulfill all conditions must marry a certain pretty and distant cousin within six months time as a second condition of the eccentric ranchman's will. Franklyn Farnum appears as the lone star and is given an excellent opportunity to display his abilities as an actor. "His Wedding Night" is one of the greatest comedies in which Roscoe Arbuckle has ever appeared. Thursday June Elvidge and Arthur Ashley will be seen in "Shall We Forgive Her," a World feature in five acts.

THE ARCADE.

The U. S. A. Girls at the Arcade today and tomorrow will present George Keeping's musical farce, "Love Island." Like the offering yesterday it tells of the adventures of an Irishman and a Hebrew. They become shipwrecked on an island peopled with pretty girls only. Keeping created many funny situations and the comedians have ample opportunity for fun. Mr. Reeves will sing "Huckleberry Finn," and "Me and My Gal," will be sung by Russell Willison, assisted by a sextette. Miss Agnes Martin will sing "When the Sun Goes Down in Dixie," and Miss Anna Martin will sing "Sailing on the Henry Clay." The latter will also sing the new patriotic melody, "Follow the Flag." The screen offering will be the third episode of "The Fighting Trail," entitled "Will Yaqui Joe Tell?" It is a complete story in itself. On Friday and Saturday W. S. Hart and Clara Williams will be in the picture with a big punch, "The Squealer."

ORPHEUM THEATRE.

"THE YANKEE WAY."—A five reel Wm. Fox drama featuring the popular and athletic star "Smiling" George Walsh. The Mutual Weekly will also be shown. Tomorrow William Russell the handsome star, goes in for some wonderful desert adventures in "Sands of Sacrifice." Rendered desperate by doubts, "Big Bill" Darcey, the character in which Russell appears and his little pal, Sammy Goode, take to the wide Sandy spaces, there adventuring until the weaker of the

To the Family of the Hon. Samuel W. Pennypacker:

It is now a matter of public knowledge that the late Governor Pennypacker wrote for publication an Autobiography.

Of the existence of this work he had often spoken to his friends.

A fear exists on the part of the latter that a desire to avoid controversy or the possible injury to some one's feelings may tempt his family to consider having the manuscript edited.

His friends and associates whose signatures are appended feel that they owe it to his family, to the institutions with which he was connected and to his memory to urge that this be not done.

Unaltered, unexpurgated and unedited, Governor Pennypacker's Autobiography constitutes an invaluable historical document of increasing public interest, perhaps his greatest contribution to the history of the State. And it is in the name of the citizens of Pennsylvania, living and to come, that we urge his family to print his Autobiography exactly as it was written.

BEYOND the verification of certain dates, titles, names and occasionally a minor incident—all of which would have been done by the author himself had not illness and death prevented—there has been no such editing as the signers of the letter above perhaps feared might occur.

Whatever or whoever may be maimed, the book goes forth as it was written.

THE FIRST PUBLICATION OF

Gov. Pennypacker's Autobiography

WILL BE AS A SERIAL IN THE PHILADELPHIA

Evening Illustrated Ledger

Commencing Saturday, Nov. 17, and continuing daily for about four months

Governor Pennypacker's narrative is more than an autobiography. It is an inner political history of the State, related with characteristic frankness by a man who never hesitated to call a spade a spade.

Governor Pennypacker's remarkable memory and his intimate knowledge of men and conditions throughout the State frequently brought discomfiture to his political opponents. That memory, re-enforced by the notes that he kept through the half-century of his public career, enabled him to re-create with vivid accuracy interesting scenes and personalities of every decade from 1860 to 1916.

The autobiography will prove of absorbing interest to every Pennsylvanian, regardless of the reader's personal bias toward the men and measures that come within range of the late Governor's far-reaching and uncompromising reminiscence.

barracks knew that they were missing a big thing for they could not go along to tease the monkey, feed peanuts to the elephant and drink red lemonade and pop—yes, that's the strongest you can get in Petersburg. In order to satisfy Corporal John Brown's desire to attend the circus, it being impossible for him to go along, we had to bring him back a balloon and a sack of peanuts.

On the morning of the first All Saints Day, a Catholic church holiday, all the Catholic men were permitted to go to church. Mass was celebrated in the most central Knights of Columbus building and two other places in camp. About 3,000 men attended at the former place, and judging from this, about 7,000 men heard mass throughout the camp.

Learning that some of the Pennsylvania boys are becoming homesick the good people of Richmond want the soldiers to come to their city to visit their homes and partake of home cooking of the famous Southern variety, and to get acquainted with Richmond families. The invitation to the men of the 80th division is extended through the commission on training activities.

Dr. and Mrs. J. French Kerr of Connellsville and Mrs. Kerr and daughter of Pittsburg, wife and daughter of Councilman Kerr, stopped at Camp Lee Thursday to see the Connellsville boys. They were enroute to Camp Hancock, Augusta, Ga. They remained in Petersburg over night.

On Sundays the fair sex invade Camp Lee by the thousands. Going past in automobiles and up and down the street they nearly all wave and smile at the boys. Clarence Durbin maintains that their motive for this is to keep the boys in good spirits.

J. W. Kenner was transferred to the 1st Co., 1st Training Brigade to the 305th ammunition train ordinance detachment.

"There's another nut over there," said Les Ritchie, spying a fellow in the hall of the headquarters barracks, continually walking around a pole and holding to it as he went around. The supposed nut overheard Les, and said, "No I'm not crazy. It's the only way to get drunk down here."

Frank Gallagher is in the 4th Truck Co., 305th Engineers.
